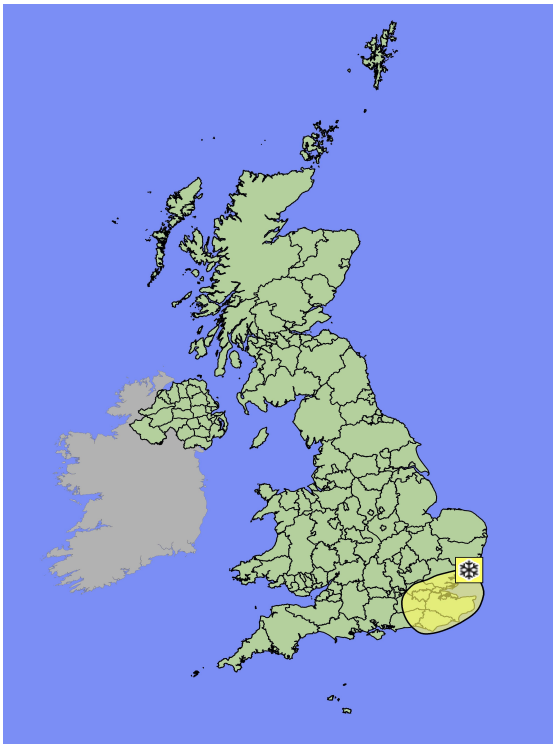
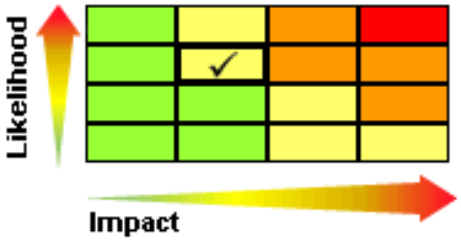
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
As the low pressure causing the sleet and snow moves away into France, the band of snow will probably move northwards into Essex and parts of Greater London for a while, although the northward extent remains uncertain at this stage. This Alert will be updated again during Sunday morning.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Snow

Valid from 00:05 on Tue, 12th Mar 2013 until 09:00 on Tue, 12th Mar 2013

There is a risk that snow will continue to fall across parts of southeast England on Tuesday morning, bringing the potential for further accumulations of 3 to 5 cm of snow. The snow will be accompanied by northeasterly strong winds, making it feel very cold.

The public should be aware of the risk of disruption to travel.
